TENLEY CAMPUS

opening January 2016

WE'RE BUILDING A WORLD OF POSSIBILITIES.

Construction of the new Tenley Campus – the future home of American University Washington College of Law – is in its final stages. And with it comes a world of possibilities for our students, faculty, and alumni.

Our exciting new campus facilities will foster excellence in legal education for decades to come – and even greater connections to the wealth of resources in the D.C. metropolitan area. We're building a unique place where students, alumni, practicing attorneys, and scholars can continue to learn, network, reflect, and help shape the legal profession.

Keeping with our long-held values as an institution, we're creating an environment of opportunity to further our commitment to diversity, human dignity, and justice around the world.

In 2016, we will celebrate the 120th anniversary of American University Washington College of Law. Along with the completion of the Tenley Campus and the ribbon cutting on February 12, it is the beginning of an exciting new chapter in our school's story.

WE'RE BUILDING AN ENVIRONMENT OF OPPORTUNITY.

“ From the widespread changes reverberating across the legal profession, to the impact of technology on higher education, to the rapid acceleration of global interconnection, we have embraced change and incorporated it into the blueprint for the future of American University Washington College of Law.

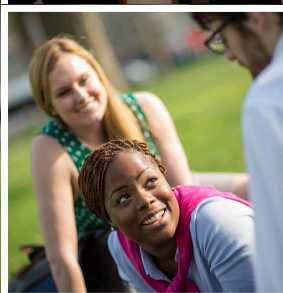

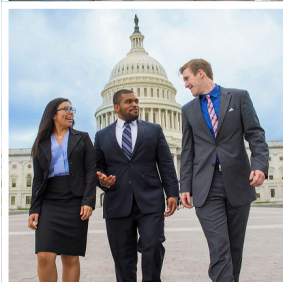

Our new Tenley Campus creates space for tradition and new ideas. With new, state-of-the-art facilities, expanded opportunities for experiential learning, indoor and outdoor learning spaces, and innovative design that facilitates collaboration and community, it will help us deepen our commitment to excellence in scholarship, education, and the practice of law.

We invite you to explore our new Tenley Campus where we are building a world of possibilities. ”
